SOUND OF THE WEEK

The taxpayer's message to congress on the new taxes which was broadcast the other night by Jerry Colona was the radio sound effect of the week. Whether it was the voice of Colona or the voice of a duck being jumped on by Colona is indeterminate. It came over the air something like "Awrrrrk!" in high C.

The thought behind it was short and to the point, too. Heavier taxes aren't going to be paid entirely out of defense boom gravy. They are going to be paid out of savings on all kinds of essentials and luxuries. They are going to be like pulling teeth. For the first time in their lives, taxpayers are going to feel as though they had been gouged.

What they want to know right off the bat is whether their sacrifices are being shared in Washington. They want to know whether the government is cutting down on non-defense spending. This business they hold stock in is beginning to cost them dearly. They'd like to be sure of some reductions in federal expenditure to match the economizing they must do to pay the taxes being levied on them—they're going to insist on being sure, in fact.

AS A GENERAL PROPOSITION

There's a lot more to the tiff over who should mail out Ohio's old age assistance checks than the kind of envelopes used, so while the lawyers are figuring out the legal angles the people can decide about the envelopes.

The envelopes now in use bear the name of State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson in black type that can be read at a glance across a room and, in even more readily visible letters, the label "Aid For Aged Check" between parallel lines. There is other information on the envelope, too, but these are the important inscriptions.

Auditor Ferguson may be dead right in his contention that his office should mail out the checks to the aged. But he is dead wrong about the propriety of advertising his name on the envelopes. It's also questionable whether the envelopes need to advertise the fact the recipient is getting an old age assistance check, but that's secondary.

Mr. Ferguson's position in the tiff with the state controlling board, which says division of aid for the aged should send out its own checks, would be improved if he hadn't stuck out his neck on those envelopes. As a general proposition, no individual is entitled to any reflected gratitude for social security, which is a purely collective responsibility.

BIRD IN THE HAND

Presidential promises of social security for double the number of people now covered cannot be considered apart from the financial problem the government is trying to solve.

When Mr. Roosevelt talks about extending the social security system over 80,000,000 persons, instead of half that many, may be projecting an already gigantic tax collection system based on social security payments into almost unthinkably magnitude. Whether he chooses to mention the taxation aspect or not—and he did mention it—the money collected could be, under the circumstances, more important than the benefit bestowed.

The government would get the bird in the hand, in other words, and the beneficiary of the social security program would get two birds in the bush. The money credited to his social security account would ease the government's financial situation, have a deterrent effect on inflation, and provide a cushion for the beneficiary in the years to come—and in that order.

It isn't surprising that some social securities are agitated about the situation. "Social Security," publication of American Association for Social Security, says government is falling into the same trap set for it by the pension panaceists' attempt to convert the social security program into a spending program to cure all the nation's ills. The trap now is being set by the anti-inflationists. "Crucial as the present emergency is," declares the publication, "the government must not fall into a similar trap of converting social security into a revenue-raising device. With social security an officially announced war aim, it would be utterly folly to allow the war effort to wreck one of its important objectives."

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, Oct. 4

A DAY of success and satisfaction may be promised, especially by daring to diverge from the beaten path. The new, novel and original are under benefic auspices. Public or collective well-being should be advanced by study as well as new tactics. An aspect of good fortune may enhance values and gives stability to possessions. Elders will be found generously disposed.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the eve of a year of stabilizing fortunes, with solid returns for work well done and real merit and fidelity to elders, employers and friends. There may be a crystallizing of wavering values in lands, or other real possessions.

A child born on this day should have many stable and solid talents gaining rich returns and preferment from elders, the public and community activities.

ENGLAND'S STAND

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

There is a peculiar interest for America in the announcement made in the British house of commons yesterday by Home Secretary Morrison that the suspended Communist organ, the Daily Worker, won't be allowed to resume publication because "in the view of the government the Communist party is not loyal to this country."

Surely it wasn't by mere coincidence that simultaneously the great conservative party of Britain in conference gave Prime Minister Churchill a unanimous vote of confidence, based on his decision to back Russia by all means as an ally.

In these two events we have England's method of declaring its position toward Communism. The government won't relax its battle against thisism. At the same time England will keep its bond to stand solidly beside Russia as an ally in the war against Hitler.

One encounters many evidences of growing anxiety and puzzlement in this country as to whether our pledge of all possible aid to the Soviet in the Conflict with Hitlerism is likely in any way to soften public opposition to the Communism which doesn't represent the American way of life. The concern and perplexity have been increased by the heated discussion of the position of religious rights in the Soviet union.

We are told that the Soviet constitution provides for religious freedom. That is true. It is equally true that the Communist party—the only one in Russia—has carried on a persistent and fierce anti-religious campaign which has been calculated to nullify in effect the constitutional right.

It isn't the business of the United States or of England to lay down the law about Russian internal affairs. By the same token it isn't Moscow's business—and Moscow hasn't said it is—to try to change our government and way of life by applying to us its policy of world revolution.

We don't have to let Communism in unless we want to. We don't even have to be polite to it.

Essentially, we in Chile are democrats and Americans, feeling deeply and hopefully our role in an age of Americans—Benjamin Claro Velasco, member of the Chilean parliament.

It seems like an awful waste of time the hundreds of millions of years the earth has been in the making, just to produce the mess it's in now.

WAR AND DISEASE ARE PARTNERS

Reports of Typhus Fever Come from Europe

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

We are getting reports of sporadic epidemics of typhus fever in Europe. Basic conditions just now in Southeastern Europe and Russia are ideal for severe epidemics.

Typhus fever is almost unknown to most United States doctors.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

It is the old jail fever, or war fever, or camp fever. It is spread by the rat, the louse and the flea.

20 POUNDS OFF BY CHRISTMAS

FALL REDUCING DIET FRIDAY

Breakfast (445):
Half grapefruit—unsweetened.
1 cup black coffee.

Lunch (600):
2 hard-boiled eggs on lettuce, with tomatoes, 1 teaspoon Mayonnaise.
1 slice toast with butter.
1 glass milk.

Dinner (750):
Small Sea-Food Cocktail. Cocktail Sauce.
Average helping lean meat.
Chiffonade Salad—1 dessertspoon French dressing.
1 slice toast—1 butter ball.
Tea with lemon, 1 lump sugar.

These associations were discovered in an historical incident concerning how Rowland Jencks lost his ears. He was a bookbinder who was brought out of jail to stand trial before the Chancellor of Oxford University for having expressed unorthodox religious views. This was back in the days of Queen Elizabeth, when not so much was known or even suspected about the spread of disease by insects.

Lice and Jail fever

In the jail where Jencks was confined had been a number of cases of "jail" fever. Jencks in court was a deplorably filthy figure; the stench from his person filled the room. But this was not unusual for a prisoner in those days; they didn't coddle prisoners. He was condemned to have his ears cut off. But he got a private revenge, because a number of the august members of the court and the spectators, fellows of the colleges of Oxford, came down with jail fever, contracted from his person. As Dr. Zinsser said in Rats, Lice and History we are forced to conclude that a number of the faculty of Oxford were lousy.

The disease flourishes wherever crowding, filth, disruption of populations, and the breakdown of hygienic precautions occur. War conditions constitute an ideal preparatory field for this and many other diseases, as Dr. Ralph Major describes in his fascinating book Fatal Partners: War and Disease. Deaths from typhus during and after the last war reached figures as high as 3,500,000.

The rat, that ancient and unwanted companion of man, has adapted itself well to the life world of spreading disease. About the middle of the Thirteenth Century came out of India the black rat (Rattus) with long ears, and a glossy black coat. It was adaptable; it learned how to travel in sailing vessels. It followed commerce, it established itself in the new commercial cities of Europe, killing off the local native species. It became the world rat.

Later came the other world rat—the brown rat. They are scavengers. They live off filth. They carry lice and fleas from house to house, man to man. Whenever there is trouble, conflagration, disruption of sewage, abandonment of food supplies, rotting grain, this hardy, successful animal swarms out of its holes, thrives breeds and spreads pestilence and famine.

Russia, Greece, Yugoslavia and China are today perfect breeding grounds for rat borne epidemics. I never see the photograph of a war-torn Russian village but I see in my mind's eye the rats coming out of their holes, spreading pestilence. In the Western Hemisphere sphere we have endemic areas in Mexico and we must exercise every precaution in these troublesome times not to let our war fever prevent our efforts at control of these fell pests.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Accidental deaths of persons over 65 are proportionately greater than in all other age groups combined.

Robert Benchley and Frances Gifford with the title character in "The Reluctant Dragon" at the State tonight and Saturday.

Walt Disney cartoon characters and real life actors appear in the new cartoon, "The Reluctant Dragon," showing on a double bill at the State Friday and Saturday. Robert Benchley (as himself) tries to sell a story for a cartoon to the Disney studio. His efforts end in his getting into the studio where he is shown a cartoon in the making—and the audience gets a glimpse of what goes on when Disney starts to make a feature. Scenes from six novelties are screened in all during the production. The second feature at the State is the story of a nurse who finds her profession exciting, dangerous and romantic when she is hired as nurse to the young daughter of a reformed gangster.

Brenda Joyce as the nurse, Jane Darwell as an older nurse who gets her the job, Sheldon Leonard as the ex-gangster, Ann Todd as the daughter and Robert Lowery as a wealthy patient of the nurse, are seen in the important roles.

The Grand's two features tonight and Saturday are: "The Pittsburgh Kid," a film story adapted from Octavus Roy Cohen's "Kid Tinsel" for the picture debut of Billy Conn, young heavyweight; and "Arizona Bound," with the Rough Riders, Buck Jones, Tim McCoy and Raymond Hatton.

Prosecutor Turns In Year's Report

LISBON, Oct. 3.—The annual report of the Columbiana county prosecutor's office for the year ending Sept. 2 was completed today by Prosecutor Frank W. Springer, showing that in addition to prosecuting criminal matters, the office gave counsel to several branches of county government, school boards and township trustees upon request, and represented the state in numerous cases in the juvenile court.

The report was divided into two sections, listing activities of the office under Prosecutor Karl T. Stouffer during the last four months of 1940, while the second applies to the eight-month activities under Prosecutor Springer.

In the September term of court last year, Prosecutor Stouffer conducted one regular session and two special sessions of the grand jury, totalling 25 days, in which 88 cases were considered and 302 witnesses examined. That body returned 56 true bills, ignored 28 cases, referred one to the probate court and continued three others.

In the disposition of indictments, three trials were held resulting in one conviction and two acquittals; 23 defendants entered pleas of guilty and 10 of that number were placed on probation while the other 13 were sentenced. Thirteen of the indictments were nolle, three defendants were not located and 17 cases were carried over at the close of the year 1940.

During the first eight months of this year Prosecutor Springer conducted two regular and two special sessions of the grand jury which was in session a total of eight days, examining 134 witnesses in the investigation of 66 cases. Forty-one true bills were returned, 21 cases ignored, three referred to juvenile court, one referred to justice of the peace court, and one continued.

Five criminal trials were held before the court, with four convictions and one acquittal. Two of those convicted were sentenced, one was placed on probation and the fourth case is now pending before the court of appeals. Forty-two defendants entered pleas of guilty and 10 were placed on probation, while indictments against three defendants were nolle and two others were not located.

Fines totalling $426 were assessed in the last four months in 1940, while $725 in fines was assessed by the court this year.

Feet Larger Now? Daylight Saving Time Responsible

(By United Press)
PITTSBURGH, Men:—Do you have big feet? Then blame it on daylight saving time.
If you have been wondering why you can't squeeze into those size 10s you bought last fall, don't wonder any more. Go out and buy a new pair, and listen to the explanation by Robert Garland, former Pittsburgh councilman and the "father of daylight saving time."

Occasioning the Garland theory was a recent magazine article, quoting army officers in charge of shoe supply in Washington that American soldiers now have bigger feet than their fellow doughboys in 1917. The War department was reported as admitting it had no explanation for the development, which was said to be also in evidence among civilians.
But now Garland has stepped forward to answer the perplexing question of the century: "Why are the feet of American men getting bigger?" And here is his reply:
"In large sections of the country,
particularly east of the Mississippi,
the boys for the past 24 years under daylight saving time have had one hour additional for a five months' period for physical exercise such as twilight baseball, mushball, tennis, horseshoe, pitching, golf, gardening, hiking, etc. Is it any wonder their feet are larger?"

Feet Allowed to Spread
"Most of them use sports shoes, which are not only more comfortable but larger than the ordinary shoes, naturally tending to make the feet spread."
But, are your bigger feet a drawback? Absolutely not, Listen:
"Having larger feet, it seems to me, makes better men—it gives a larger foundation for the human machine, just as in mechanics, a machine does better work and lasts longer on a solid foundation. And with the larger feet come larger hands."

Perhaps, despite your bigger feet,
you are taller and more muscular.
That, too, may be due to "fast time," according to Garland, who urged the army to make an analysis on all-over health to prove his contention that longer light makes more might.

Sees Wider Benefits
Aside from the obvious delight of shoe manufacturers, the news of America's big feet also comes "as a revelation" to Garland, who pil-

It Takes a Stretch of the Imagination but—

Blow me down, if it ain't a big blow. If this is a blow to you, it certainly was to the house. And just look at that telephone pole! It seems there was a big wind. The Ogden, Utah, photographer was stumped as to how to get a good picture without becoming winded. He stretched his imagination a bit and stretched the negative. This is the result.

onceered in passage of the first nationwide Daylight Saving act in 1917, and has been promoting the idea ever since. He proudly admits the responsibility for the nation's large shoe sizes.
"It now appears, judging from the army records, that having had a conspicuous part in the physical well-being of this generation's boy-hood and manhood—having in other words, helped to benefit a fairly good portion of our people—I might be classed as a humanitarian, having contributed something to benefit humanity."
But the venerable Garland, in his justified enthusiasm, has overlooked a distressing possibility.
So, if you happen to live in an area which does not go by daylight saving time, just disregard this, and ascribe your condition to natural causes. But you'll have to buy a new pair of shoes anyway.

MAKING OF SHELLS IS GIVEN BOOST

Salem Engineering Product Turns Out 360 Forgings An Hour

A plant in the Pittsburgh district Jan. 10 of this year. This company is operating three Witter process units and a large unit is being installed at the present time.

The existing mills, made by the Salem company, are producing shell forgings ranging from 75 mm. to 14-inch anti-aircraft, while the larger unit will produce forgings ranging from 105 mm. to 7-inch. The Witter process unit is making 75 mm. shell forgings at a rate of 360 an hour in the Pittsburgh district.

Surpass Estimates

Although the Salem Engineering Co. originally set up an estimated production of 280 75-mm. shell forgings an hour, numerous hourly runs of more than 300, and some eight hour turn productions of approximately 2,000, and 24-hour day productions of 5,000 have been realized.

Short runs on 75's have been as high as seven per minute and production averages, deducting lost time, have been about 275 per hour.

As the result of recent production speedups, engineers of the Salem company believe that with the proper type of blank producing equipment, a maximum of 360 75 mm. shell forgings should be produced in an hour, while even the larger 155's could be turned out at a rate of 160 per hour.

Where ordinarily from 60 to 70 blanks are produced from a conventional press, it would require from three to four such units to provide the 250 per hour necessary for the Witter process.

The process has been designed to meet mass production requirements and employs the use of roller round billets or round cornered square billets. It calls for modern heating equipment, a high production blank piercing press, and the special equipment for rolling to rough turned diameters.

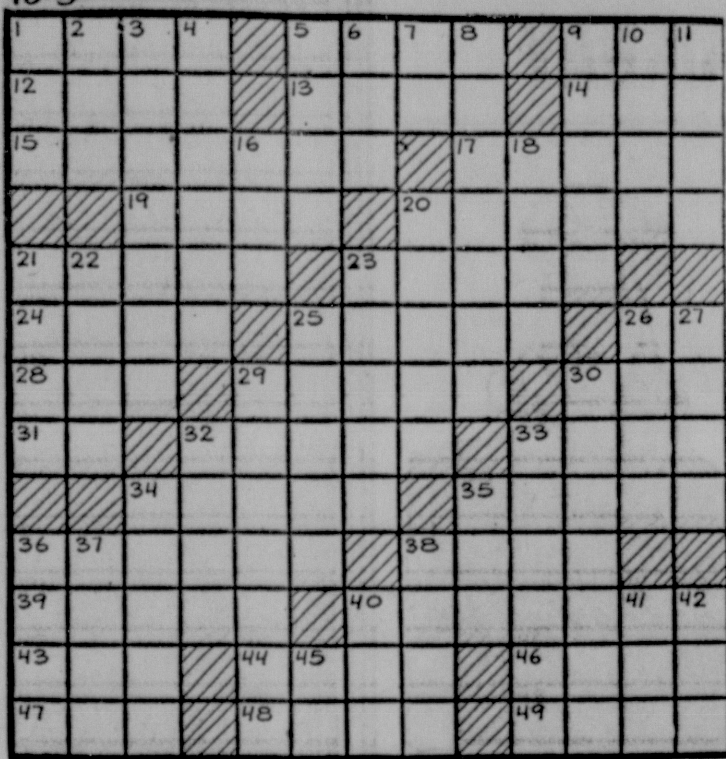

Although the local company contemplated the use of an entirely new mill from beginning to end, it found that the process was ideally adaptable to equipment already existing in many plants. Not only could a group of single punch and single die presses be used to form the pierced blank, but it was found that board or steam drop hammers and conventional upsetters could also perform the same function.

Where no existing equipment is available, the firm has designed and is building a double turret type high production blank piercing press capable of supplying from this single unit the entire requirements of the finishing mill.

Salem Engineering Co. claims an outstanding feature of the Witter process is to be found in substantial savings of material by producing a 75 mm. shell forging from approximately 16 lb. of billet steel as against 20 lb. utilized by some processes. The machined forging weighs approximately 10 lb.

In Twin Launching

Following a few minutes after its sistership, the U. S. S. Cowie, was launched, the new destroyer, U. S. S. Knight, is pictured sliding down the ways at the Boston navy yard. The ship was named after the late Rear Admiral Austin M. Knight.

Youngstown, took place on a specially constructed throne at the speaker's platform at the intersection of E. State st. and Broadway, with Walter Strain serving as master of ceremonies.

Strain introduced the queen and her attendants and the flower crown was placed on top of her head by little Marilyn Burns. A large loving cup was presented to the queen by one of the pages, while smaller cups were given to her attendants. Each girl carried pretty flower bouquets.

Accompanying the queen's float in the parade through the city were the American Legion color guard, the Salem High school band, members of the Salem Polo club, and cars bearing the reception committee, Mayor Phillips, W. L. Hart, president of the Business Bureau, and T. Emerson Smith and Ora Anderson, festival co-chairmen.

J. H. Gourley, head of the horticultural department of the Wooster experiment station, addressed a gathering of district fruit growers last night in the basement of the Methodist church. His topic was "Some Forces at work which aim to stabilize the fruit industry."

Gourley cited figures to show that Columbiana county is the largest apple producing area in the state, although Lawrence county boasts more trees.

The expert also pointed out the need of eliminating undesirable varieties of apples, such as the Ben Davis, the Winter Banana and the Duchess in this region.

He recalled a statement of W. H. Matthews, Salem orchardist, which has since been confirmed, that more than five million persons live within a 100-mile radius of Salem, nearly all of them potential consumers of food supplies produced in this area.

He said that apples grown in the Columbiana and southern Mahoning county district were practically free of codling worms which beset many other apple growing centers.

Wondering about the 1942 cars?

Here is Buick's superb solution to the problems posed by making our national defense, as it should be, industrial America's No. 1 job

BUICK BUILDS FOR DEFENSE

Our assignments Building Pratt & Whitney valve-in-head aircraft engines for defense use.

It was no time to duck or dodge the facts. So we didn't try.

Instead we said—these being the materials critical in the defense program, we'll do our planning for 1942 with that foremost in mind.

Not merely for an "acceptable" car—certainly not for any "ersatz" number.

We had to have a real and representative Buick. One we could be proud of. One able enough, active enough, durable enough to serve till annual new models are the rule again.

We resolved on a 1942 automobile of such merit as could carry the Buick reputation without fault until other new Buicks, however far off, could come along to refresh it.

Now we're announcing those 1942 cars.

Why waste words telling you how good they are! You can't put language in the gas tank and learn either how many or how enjoyable are the miles you'll get per gallon.

There's a better answer—you drive these cars themselves. Come on, do that! Put your own yardstick on their quality.

It would be a shame, for you and for us, to have you miss the dreadnaught Buick we've built to stand up successfully to the toughest job in years.

Fighting Series Looms As Games Move To Heart Of Flatbush

EBBETS FIELD IS SCENE OF GAMES TODAY, SATURDAY

Series Squared As Brooks Rally Behind Wyatt To Win Second Game

By GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—There was no doubt in anyone's mind today that this was to be a grimy-fought World Series. After all, as the Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers moved to Ebbets field to continue the battle for gold and baseball glory.

The whole picture changed abruptly yesterday when Whitlow Wyatt stood the slugging Yankees on their collective "noggin" for the last five innings and pitched the scrapping Dodgers to a 3-2 victory at Yankee stadium, squaring the Series.

Until Wyatt came through for the National League champions, things had looked mighty dark for them. The manner in which the Yanks had bounced the Bums around in the opening contest brought visions of another four-game sweep for the Bombers, and Brooklyn was disgraced.

Both managers named alternative pitching choices for today's struggle in the heart of Flatbush. Manager Leo Durocher of the revived Dodgers was torn between Kirby Higbe, the young speedballer who won 22 games for him this year, and Pat Freddy Fitzsimmons, the veteran with the knuckle ball that swoops and dances.

Disappointed at Spud Chandler's sudden loss of effectiveness in yesterday's tussle after he had pitched four nearly-perfect innings, Joe McCarthy of the Yanks was in a state of indecision whether to use Marius Russo, the southpaw, or Arley Donald, a right-hander with fine control. Russo was thought more likely to get the call if he could get a rebellious stomach back on the reservation by game time.

Only one thing was absolutely certain about today's contest, or about the next three, for that matter. The crowd was going to look small after the two huge gatherings in the stadium. Where more than 68,000 saw the opener and 66,248 turned out yesterday, only about 34,000 can be sandwiched into the Dodgers' emporium.

There might be some unscheduled excitement in Brooklyn, too, if the two clubs continue to fly into each other with the violence shown so far and the games remain as tense and close. For two days now they have been acting like blocking backs on the base paths. The runners on both clubs slamming into the infielders with intent to maim. There's likely to be a blow-up between the players if it continues, and the Brooklyn fans have been known to take a personal interest in any scraps involving their heroes. Boy, my battle bowler.

While Wyatt's superlative pitching in the pinches stood out like a red nose in yesterday's game, it was almost equally easy to spot the Yankee who did most to make the Dodgers victory possible. It was little Phil Rizzuto, the freshman shortstop, who twice at crucial moments was caught far out of position and saw hits go bouncing through where he should have been.

Out of Position
In the fifth inning, for some unfathomable reason, he was playing far over toward second on Mickey Owen, and the Dodger catcher scratched the single between third and short that drove across the second Brooklyn run, tying the score.

In the next inning he played Billy Herman, another slighted batter, the same way, and Billy bluffed one through the identical spot, sending Dixie Walker to third with what eventually proved to be the winning run. Dolph Camilli, who couldn't hit a lick in the first game, drove Walker across with a wallop to right.

It was a good thing Dolph hit that one, because from that point on Johnny Murphy, who relieved Chandler, allowed the Dodgers only one harmless single, by Cookie Lavagetto in the ninth. In fact the Flatbushers made only six hits in all, compared with nine the Yankees collected off Wyatt.

It is not often that the boys get an opportunity to second-guess on Manager McCarthy, but he apparently was thinking of something else when he let Pitcher Murphy take his turn at bat in the sixth.

Easily Fanned
The Dodgers were out front, 3-2, and Wyatt was getting faster by the minute. With two down, Joe Gordon drew one of his three walks of the game and sped to second on Rizzuto's rap to left field. The tying run was on second, the winner on first, and instead of a pinch-hitter popping from the Yankee bench, out stroled Murphy himself. He took three lusty swings, missing the ball by increasing margins each time.

It was a strange decision for McCarthy to have made. The game was getting late and the Yankees had a dangerous pinch-hitter, George Selkirk, raring to go. When Selkirk finally did get his chance in the ninth inning, after the time to beat Wyatt had long since passed, he lapped a hit to right field. That is what is known as second-guessing.

HOWELL RELATES BRIGHT BITS OF GRIDIRON GOSSIP

Punt and Pass Paragraphs—Or Pickups From the Pigsaw Panorama

By FRITZ HOWELL
(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 3.—Punt and pass paragraphs—or pickups from the pigsaw panorama.

Benny Blossie, Akron's flashy halfback, is quoted in the Akron Buckeye to the effect that "Wink Evans, Muskingum's all-star end, is the finest fellow I ever met.

First he hits you in the mouth with his elbow, and then he helps you get up after the whistle blows."

The breezy Buckeye also had this to say about Akron's 10-0 win over the Muskies: "The boys claim that Bill Wilkins, who 'hurt' his ankle in the first quarter, had two strikes on him before he even got to New Concord. In fact, they knocked the 'L' out of him before he started—the Muskies spelled his name 'Winkins' in the program."

That Marshall-Dayton game Saturday looks like a "Lulu," with some of the midwest's best ball-carrying backs pitted against each other. The other day, Walter Zach, Dayton's classy right guard, hit a canvas-covered practice dummy so hard that Coach Harry Bauman, who was holding it up, was knocked flat.

Zach got up, dusted himself off, turned to the mentor who finally struggled to his feet, and declared: "If you can't take it, Harry, get out of the way, 'cause that's the way we block."

Kenyon opens its 61st year of intercollegiate football Saturday by entertaining Oberlin, and the Lords will have as their honored guest a man who played on that first squad, more than a half-century ago. The veteran is Gray Butts, a resident of Gambier, who was in the thick of it 51 years ago when the Lords lost to Denison, 14-10, at Granville, in their first attempt at the pigsaw game.

Ohio State university has the smallest, and one of the finest freshman squads in modern history. In place of the 250 to 300 hopefuls who reported in recent years, only 120 were on hand for this week's first frosh workouts, and at least 10 of these were slated to be dropped before next week.

Among the standouts are six members of Massillon High school's championship team, headed by Al-McGhee. He has 141, 160, 134, 431, 152, 136, 143, 431, 106, 105, 136, 347, 123, 126, 101, 350, 81, 81, 81, 248.

BARRED 7 SEVENS by MARYSE RUTLEDGE

SYNOPSIS

On his way to Haverstraw to visit his fiancée, Jane Rider, Davis Farland prevents a young woman from jumping off a ferry. She entrusts him with an envelope, requesting that he deliver it to the socially prominent Richard Garrison, if she doesn't call for it in a week. The girl's eyes dilate with fear as she sees a certain couple watching them. "I know he wouldn't play fair!" she exclaims and rushes off, dropping a compact initialed "C. B." and pamphlet reading "Americans, Warning!" On the train David discovers the envelope is gone! At Haverstraw, he again sees the mysterious woman. Jane and he follow her taxi but it disappears. Stopping at a gas station, they meet Mat Breanu, wealthy Broadwayite, and his friend, Fan Rubley. David drops the compact. Breanu recognizes it. When David refuses to reveal where he got it, Mat tells him to "Give me or Garrison a ring, Monday!" What did Breanu know about the whole affair? Shortly after, in a railway station store, David and Jane encounter the couple who had frightened the girl on the boat. A fight ensues but the couple escape. Returning home, David and Jane are met by Mrs. Rider and Kurt Helm, a writer, who lives in a nearby cabin. Kurt is infatuated with Jane and has threatened to win her from David. As the latter goes to take his baggage from the rumble seat, he pulls back in horror. Stuffed into it is the body of the girl David met on the ferry. Awaiting the state troopers, Jane warns David against confiding in Helm and goes into the house. She comes back when the troopers arrive.

CHAPTER SEVEN

The little car was still on the road at the end of the path. In its lamp rays she saw the men, silhouetted as in a modern stage effect. David's solid build confronted Kurt Helm, lithe in tweeds. Their voices drifted to Jane. She walked silently toward them, then paused in the shadow of a maple. Timmy seemed to understand. He crouched at her feet.

David was stating bluntly, "I've told you the facts, Helm. But I never said she was stabbed. How could I know? You saw me reach in for my bag, and then—well, I touched a body—and nearly passed out." His voice rose. "At that, it might be suicide." He didn't sound sure.

Kurt's answer to David, when it came was dry. "You forget that I looked her over. There was no weapon." He added, "They'll find both our fingerprints on the car."

"But—stabbed!" David spoke more sharply. "If there was no weapon, how can you tell?" Helm answered, "I used my flashlight. It's a knife wound, all right—a clean cut under the heart. You can tell by the lip of the wound."

Jane shivered, started forward: stopped. What David was saying now, brought that same undefined sense back to her of something—something baffling she had forgotten.

"Well, I'm stumped! I told you about the stolen envelope," David said. "All I've got now is the compact I showed you. And, oh yes—this. It doesn't amount to anything." He dragged a wadded paper out of his pocket. "Just one of those propaganda booklets—a lot of rot we don't need rammed down our throats." With a snort of disgust, he threw the paper down on the road. His hair gleamed red in the light.

"Ed-Ed Blagden," Jane called, running after him.

Kurt Helm retrieved the few mimeographed pages. Jane left the sheltering maple, and ran toward them. "Do let me see it, Kurt." She held out her hand.

Kurt looked at her. It's of no importance," he said carelessly, and thrust the pages into the pocket of his tweed coat.

"I want to see them," Jane insisted.

David wheeled around, suddenly alert, his chin hard in its out-thrust. "You heard Jane. She wants to see that stuff."

The big white limousine swept around the curve of the road before any of them were aware of it. Three people tumbled out, and came running in the glare of the lamps.

"Mr. Breanu!" Jane cried. "Why, how did you—?" "My radio—" He brushed by her, his olive skin greenish. The thin ebony stick he had carried in the garage, tapped on the hard road. The blonde, Fan Rubley, wrapped in her black satin, tripped on high heels behind him. And there was another man, slender, gray haired, in a dinner coat.

David stepped forward. Breanu said savagely, "Let me look—" He walked to the rumble seat; stared in. "Carlie—my wife!" His voice broke. He steadied himself with his stick, his hair glistening black in the car lights, his eyelids heavy.

Beside him, Fan Rubley's round face twisted. She was crying. Breanu pivoted about; his dark, brilliant eyes searching. "Who did this?"

Another car rounded the corner, bore down to a neat stop. Two tall men in gray-green uniforms leaped out, and a third man in plain Jane hooked her hand in her mother's arm, and looked around. Kurt Helm had vanished.

The road below the Rider house swarmed with lights and men. The trooper started to cross the lawn. "Ed-Ed Blagden—" Jane called, and ran after him.

"What are they doing, Ed?" she asked catching up with him.

The tall young trooper fiddled with his wide hat brim. "I don't know. It's pretty serious."

"But David and I had nothing to do with it," Jane gasped. "We haven't any idea how she got in my car."

Trooper Blagden leaned forward, his keen eyes and mouth friendly. "Don't you worry," he said. Then muttering something about telephoning headquarters, he walked away.

Jane stared after him. This must be a nightmare. He became more so, as Kurt Helm stepped out from the shadows of a leafy bush. She gave a little cry.

"Don't let me frighten you," he said. "I've come to offer you the last thing on earth you want—advice."

"That's swell of you," Jane said sharply. "Where have you been? You left David, Mother and me as soon as the troopers came." Her distrust of the man increased as she met his eyes, oblong and luminous in the dark.

He stood in his old tweeds, looking down at her challenging head. Her chestnut hair was crisped by the dampness.

"What a pity, my dear," he said. "You and I could—"

"I don't want your advice, your pity or anything," Jane turned her back on him.

But Kurt whirled her around, pulling her into the shadow of the bush. "You're in a jam, Jane, and you don't know it," he said fiercely. "Listen—"

She heard the murmur of voices below on the road, especially David's voice, talking and talking.

"Your boy friend is telling all," Kurt sounded bitter.

"There's nothing to tell but the truth," Jane insisted, struggling to break away.

"You'll Never Know the Relief Ton Jon Can Give Until You Try It Yourself"

TONJON No. 2 Corrected Cause of Constipation. No Longer Suffers With Headaches, Upset Stomach, Dizzy Spells, Nor Nervousness.

"You cannot know what TONJON will do for you until you try it for yourself. I have tried TONJON and my return of health speaks for itself," declared Mrs. Peggy Hughes Cole, lifelong resident of this locality, living on R. No. 3, Marietta, Ohio.

"For twenty years I've been in a generally rundown nervous condition and almost any food I ate brought on gas, heart fluttering, and acid returns to my throat. I took strong laxatives but nothing seemed to help the constipation I'd had for years. The sluggish condition of my liver had caused much suffering with gevere headaches, biliousness, dizziness, spots before my eyes, gall bladder trouble and an awful pain in the back of my neck.

"I could tell TONJON No. 2 was working from the first dose I took, and by the time I'd finished my first bottle I was improving rapidly. It has corrected the cause of my constipation, sick headaches and other suffering. My nerves are steady now and my stomach isn't causing any trouble and that is truly wonderful. Thanks to TONJON No. 2, life is again pleasant to live."

Learn how TONJON can help you, too. Come to the Broadway Lease Drug Store, Salem, Ohio, and ask to see the TONJON Health Representative.
